

Today on Sept. 11 2002, one yr after the terrorism attacks on America I still have mixed feelings. I am happy that our country has become more patriotic & that this has brought us together as one. And I am also upset at how big a tragedy this was. A yr ago today I remember sitting in english class seeing it for the first time on T.V. & having know idea what was going on. only ~~now~~ now a year later I feel I fully understand. Me as a 4 yr old then (& 15 now) couldnt grasp the severity of it all. but after its all unfolded & I see how it really has had its affects on the whole country its such a shame. I personally cant understand the loss of it all. and I hope you many yrs from sept 11 2001 will not think any less of this enormous event. And never forget what you have b/c in a matter of minutes, it may all be gone. The images will be forever burned in my mind, maybe not yours & that is probably good. But never forget who you are, you are an AMERICAN. Respect that & honor that forever. UNITED WE STAND.
